Sheridan Healthcare Expands Hospital-Based Services to Include Radiology

Sunrise, FL, January 15, 2007 ─ Sheridan Healthcare*, the premier hospital-based solution for physician services, recently expanded its business by acquiring Florida United Radiology, L.C. ("FUR"). By adding in-house radiology and teleradiology to its comprehensive list of hospital-based services, Sheridan Healthcare becomes the first physician organization to offer anesthesiology, neonatology, emergency and radiology programs nationwide.

Established in 1998, FUR has been a leading provider of remote reading in South Florida for the past 7 years. FUR has developed a sophisticated internal network allowing teleconferencing of cases among facilities, as well as internal after-hour services. The group employs innovative working schedules by mixing on-site coverage with teleradiology services that are attractive to radiologists, referring physicians and facilities.

"With Sheridan Healthcare's experience and infrastructure, we now have the capacity to expand our advanced radiology services nationwide", says Maria Rodriguez, MD, Chief Medical Officer of Sheridan Radiology Services, Inc.

About Sheridan Healthcare

Sheridan Healthcare, physician-owned and managed for over 50 years, provides solutions to the various and unique needs of medical facilities and its providers. Solutions range from recruiting highly credentialed physicians and managing the teams they work in, to billing and collecting payments for their services. The retention rate of Sheridan's physicians and allied healthcare workers is among the highest in the industry, providing stability for its clients' programs and strengthening Sheridan's reputation for quality and service in meeting and exceeding its clients' needs.
